
Notes on Contributors

Dr Tunji Namaiko is a peace and security expert with over a decade of experience in designing and operationalising I4Ps across Sub-Saharan Africa. He has closely accompanied I4P support processes led by the UN, AU, RECs and AfDB among others, in fragile and transition countries. His recent work has largely focused on the SADC region. He holds a PhD from the University of Leicester (UK), with a focus on intelligence studies.

Dr Oita Etyang holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of Johannesburg (RSA). Dr Etyang has over a decade of experience across Africa covering the wider spectrum of conflict prevention, management, resolution and post conflict reconstruction processes.

Professor Kasaija Phillip Apuuli teaches in the Department of Political Science and Public administration, Makerere University, Kampala.

Dr Festus Kofi Aubyn is the Regional Coordinator, Research and Capacity Building, at the West Africa Network for Peacebuilding (WANEP), in Accra, Ghana.

Dr Chukwuemeka B. Eze is the Executive Director of WANEP, in Accra, Ghana.

Professor Tim Murithi is Head of the Peacebuilding Interventions Programme at the Institute for Justice and Reconciliation in Cape Town, and Extraordinary Professor of African Studies, at the Centre for African and Gender Studies, University of the Free State, in South Africa, as well as an Honorary Research Associate, Institute for Democracy, Citizenship and Public Policy in Africa, University of Cape Town. He has over 25 years of experience in the fields of peace, security, international justice, governance and development.

Muneinazvo Kujeke is a governance, peace and security expert with extensive experience analysing African trends and dynamics. She is currently completing her PhD in Politics at the University of Johannesburg, where she specialises in performing in-depth research on the relationship between former youth ex-combatants and post-war democracy. She has previously worked for the African Union Commission and the Institute for Security Studies' Training for Peace Programme.